

Some Do's and Don'ts for Volunteers

Do:

- Realise that nearly 60% of graffiti removals from painted surfaces are none other than paint-over's. There is a fair chance that your little brush and bucket may not be the correct tools. So....
- Try to remove little bits of each marker before embarking on a large area....(if you can't remove a few square inches then you will not be able to remove several square feet!)
- When using the Sensitive Surface Graffiti Remover, keep your work clean by only brushing up and completing small areas at a time.
- Remember the golden rule: If it's not coming off easy then you must rethink the situation. There should be no such thing as a hard job.
- Keep your toweling cloths clean as you go and wash your brushes when finished.
- Report any unfinished work to your team leader or something that would maybe re-attract the vandal.
- Realize that you are an important, skilled person who is much appreciated by your community.
- Make sure you have fun and success whilst removing graffiti.

Don't:

- Don't think you can do anything and everything. Even professionals have to realize their limitations. By testing small bits you will avoid any embarrassment in front of people. Report what you cannot do.
- Don't be afraid to realize you are actually learning a highly skilled trade that can be used in many other facets of your life. Experiment and tell others of your results.
- Don't worry if every tiny bit is not removed; 'Drive-By' standard will do. You can always be finicky once the vandals are out of the area.
- Don't repaint/obliterate something by using an obviously wrong color. Vandals are attracted exactly to the picture frame rectangle you have just completed.
- Don't worry if things don't happen like they are supposed to. Shift to something that will happen. There is no shortage of graffiti and every little bit helps our community. Head for the areas that you can be successful in performing immediately.
